

Contents

---

|  |           |
|--|-----------|
| Preface   | xvii      |
| Acknowledgments   | xix       |
|    |           |
| Part One: Lawyers and the Legal Landscape                    | 1  |
| 1. Overview of the Lawyer’s Role                                    | 3  |
| I. Writing and a Lawyer’s Roles  | 3         |
| II. Overview of a Civil Case   | 5         |
| III. Ethical Duties  | 8         |
| IV. Legal Citation   | 9         |
| A. Plagiarism  | 9         |
| B. When to Cite  | 11        |
| 2. The Legal System, the Common Law Process, and Kinds of Authority | 13 |
| I. The Structure of Court Systems  | 13        |
| A. The Federal Court System  | 13        |
| B. State Court Systems   | 14        |
| II. The Functions of Trial and Appellate Courts                            | 15        |
| A. The Functions of Trial Courts   | 15        |
| B. The Functions of Appellate Courts                                       | 16        |
| III. The Common Law Process  | 17        |
| A. Stare Decisis   | 17        |
| B. Holdings  | 18        |
| C. The Breadth of Holdings   | 19        |
| D. Holdings Versus Dicta   | 21        |
| IV. The Weight of Authority  | 23        |
| A. Primary Authority Versus Secondary Authority                            | 23        |
| B. Mandatory Authority Versus Persuasive Authority                         | 25        |
| C. Other Characteristics Affecting the Persuasive Value of Cases           | 26        |
|    |           |
| Part Two: Reading and Analyzing the Law                      | 29 |
| 3. Briefing and Synthesizing Cases                                  | 31 |
| I. Introduction to Case Briefing   | 31        |
| II. A Format for Case Briefing   | 32        |
| A. Sample Case Brief   | 36        |
| III. Synthesizing Cases  | 36        |
| A. Using Consistent Cases  | 37        |
| B. Reconciling Seemingly Inconsistent Cases                                | 37        |
| 4. Interpreting Statutes  | 45 |
| I. Reading Statutes  | 45        |
| II. Identifying Issues   | 49        |
| III. Interpreting the Statute’s Language                                   | 51        |
| IV. Canons of Construction   | 52        |

|   |            |
|---|------------|
| 5. Forms of Legal Reasoning   | 55  |
| I. Rule-Based Reasoning   | 55         |
| II. Analogical Reasoning (Analogizing and Distinguishing Cases)           | 56         |
| III. Policy-Based Reasoning   | 58         |
| IV. Principle-Based Reasoning   | 59         |
| V. Custom-Based Reasoning   | 59         |
| VI. Inferential Reasoning   | 60         |
| VII. Narrative  | 62         |
|   |            |
| Part Three: Writing the Discussion of a Legal Question      | 65  |
| 6. The Writing Process and Law-Trained Readers                            | 67  |
| I. The Writing Process  | 67         |
| II. Law-Trained Readers   | 71         |
| A. Focus on the Reader  | 71         |
| B. Attention Levels   | 72         |
| C. Road Maps  | 73         |
| D. Readers as Commentators  | 73         |
| E. Judges as Readers  | 74         |
| F. Law Professors as Readers  | 76         |
| 7. Large-Scale Organization: Creating an Annotated Outline                | 79  |
| I. Rule Structures  | 79         |
| II. Creating an Annotated Outline   | 84         |
| A. The First Level: The Legal Questions You HaveBeen Asked to Address | 85         |
| B. The Second Level: Governing Rules                                      | 85         |
| C. The Third Level and Beyond: The Rule's Structure                       | 86         |
| D. Omitting Issues Not in Dispute   | 87         |
| E. Uncertainty About Which Rule Your Jurisdiction Will Adopt              | 87         |
| F. Annotating Your Outline  | 88         |
| 8. Small-Scale Organization: Explaining the Law                           | 91  |
| I. An Overview of the Paradigm for Legal Analysis                         | 91         |
| II. Stating the Conclusion  | 92         |
| III. Stating the Governing Rule   | 93         |
| IV. Explaining the Rule: Five Components                                  | 94         |
| V. Guidelines for Rule Explanation  | 95         |
| VI. Organizing a Pure Question of Law                                     | 97         |
| 9. Small-Scale Organization: Applying the Law                             | 103 |
| I. Two Approaches to Writing the Application Section                      | 103        |
| II. Content of Rule Application   | 104        |
| III. Common Trouble Spots in Rule Application Sections                    | 105        |
| IV. Evaluating Your Draft   | 109        |
| 10. Discussing Multiple Issues: Putting It All Together                   | 111 |
| I. Ordering for Your Reader   | 111        |
| A. Accounting for Elements Not at Issue                                   | 111        |
| B. Selecting an Order for the Remaining Issues                            | 112        |
| II. Umbrella Sections   | 113        |
| III. The Conclusion   | 116        |
| IV. Editing Subsection Lengths  | 116        |
| V. Variations of the Multi-Issue Paradigm                                 | 117        |

|  |                |
|--|----------------|
| 11. Deepening Your Analysis                             | 119     |
| I. Using Policies and Principles in Rule Explanation           | 119            |
| II. Using Analogical Reasoning in Rule Application             | 122            |
| A. Deciding Which Similarities and Differences Are Significant | 122            |
| B. Choosing a Format for Your Case Comparison                  | 123            |
| III. Using Factual Inferences in Rule Application              | 126            |
| Part Four: Predictive Writing                | 129 |
| 12. Writing an Office Memo                              | 131     |
| I. The Function of an Office Memo                              | 131            |
| II. An Overview of the Memo Format                             | 131            |
| III. Drafting the Heading                                      | 133            |
| IV. Drafting the Question Presented                            | 133            |
| V. Drafting the Brief Answer                                   | 137            |
| VI. Drafting the Fact Statement                                | 139            |
| A. Fact Selection  | 140            |
| B. Organization  | 141            |
| VII. Drafting the Conclusion                                   | 143            |
| 13. Writing Professional Letters                        | 147     |
| I. General Characteristics of Professional Letter Writing      | 147            |
| II. Letters to Clients   | 150            |
| A. General Considerations                                      | 150            |
| B. Retainer Letters  | 150            |
| C. Advice Letters  | 154            |
| D. Status Letter   | 155            |
| III. Letters to Other Lawyers                                  | 155            |
| A. General Considerations                                      | 155            |
| B. Demand Letters and Responses                                | 157            |
| C. Confirming Letters  | 157            |
| IV. Transmittal Letters  | 158            |
| Part Five: The Shift to Advocacy             | 161 |
| 14. Introduction to Brief-Writing                       | 163     |
| I. Ethics and the Advocate's Craft                             | 163            |
| II. Judges, Briefs, and Persuasion                             | 166            |
| III. The Components of a Trial-Level Brief                     | 168            |
| IV. The Components of an Appellate Brief                       | 171            |
| 15. Questions Presented and Point Headings              | 175     |
| I. Writing the Question Presented                              | 175            |
| II. Point Headings   | 179            |
| A. Identifying Point Headings                                  | 179            |
| B. Drafting Point Headings                                     | 181            |
| C. Editing Point Headings for Readability and Persuasion       | 184            |
| D. Identifying Subheadings                                     | 187            |
| 16. Writing the Argument Section                        | 189     |
| I. Arguments for Different Kinds of Legal Issues               | 189            |
| A. A Pure Question of Law                                      | 189            |
| B. An Issue of Statutory Interpretation                        | 190            |
| C. An Issue of Common Law Case Synthesis                       | 190            |

|            |  |            |
|------------|--|------------|
| D.         | A Case of First Impression on Your Jurisdiction              | 191        |
| E.         | Seeking a Change in the Law                                  | 192        |
| F.         | An Issue Applying Law to Fact                                | 192        |
| II.        | Honing Your Argument for the Court's Rule                    | 193        |
| A.         | The Trial Judge  | 193        |
| B.         | Appellate Judges and the Appellate Process                   | 193        |
| III.       | Suggestions and Reminders                                    | 194        |
| IV.        | Rebutting Your Opponent's Arguments                          | 197        |
| 17. | Standards of Review                                   | 199 |
| I.         | Categories of Trial Court Decisions                          | 199        |
| II.        | Advocating a More Favorable Standard of Review               | 203        |
| III.       | Conforming Headings to the Standard of Review                | 205        |
| 18. | Writing a Fact Statement                              | 209 |
| I.         | Fact Ethics, Readers, and the Conventions of Fact Statements | 210        |
| A.         | Fact Ethics  | 210        |
| B.         | The Conventions of a Statement of Facts                      | 210        |
| II.        | Developing a Theory of the Case and Selecting Facts          | 212        |
| A.         | Developing a Theory of the Case                              | 212        |
| B.         | Selecting and Citing to Facts                                | 213        |
| III.       | Organization   | 214        |
| A.         | Formats  | 214        |
| B.         | Procedural History   | 215        |
| IV.        | Techniques for Persuasion                                    | 215        |
| A.         | General Principles   | 215        |
| B.         | Large-Scale Organization                                     | 216        |
| C.         | Paragraph Organization                                       | 217        |
| D.         | Techniques with Sentences                                    | 217        |
| E.         | Other Small-Scale Techniques                                 | 219        |
|            | Statement of Facts on Behalf of Carrolton                    | 222        |
|            | Statement of Facts on Behalf of Watson                       | 222        |
| 19. | Using Legal Theory to Sharpen Your Arguments          | 227 |
| I.         | Natural Law  | 228        |
| II.        | Formalism  | 230        |
| III.       | Legal Realism  | 232        |
| IV.        | Legal Process  | 235        |
| V.         | Fundamental Rights   | 237        |
| VI.        | Law and Economics  | 239        |
| VII.       | Critical Legal Theory  | 240        |
| VIII.      | The Jurisprudence of Legal Writing                           | 242        |
|            | Part Six: Style and Formalities                | 245 |
| 20. | Citations and Quotations                              | 247 |
| I.         | Citation in Legal Writing                                    | 247        |
| II.        | Citation Form  | 249        |
| A.         | Using the ALWD Citation Manual                               | 249        |
| B.         | Using the Bluebook   | 251        |
| C.         | Several Key Concepts   | 252        |
| D.         | Introduction to Citation Form                                | 253        |
| E.         | Matching the Citation to the Text                            | 255        |
| F.         | Citing with Style and Grace                                  | 257        |
| G.         | Editing Citation Form  | 258        |
| III.       | Quotations   | 265        |
| A.         | When Quotation Marks Are Required                            | 266        |

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| B. Choosing to Use Quotation Marks                         | 268        |
| C. Overquoting   | 268        |
| D. The Mechanics of Quoting                                | 269        |
| E. Editing Quotations                                      | 271        |
| 21. Paragraphs, Sentences, and Style                | 273 |
| I. Paragraphing  | 273        |
| II. Choose Strong Subjects and Verbs                       | 276        |
| A. Active Voice  | 276        |
| B. Nominalizations   | 278        |
| C. Throat-Clearing   | 279        |
| D. Sentences Beginning with Forms of “It Is” or “There Is” | 280        |
| III. Avoiding Wordiness                                    | 281        |
| A. Revise Phrases That Can Be Replaced by a Single Word    | 281        |
| B. Avoid Legalese  | 282        |
| C. Avoid Redundancies                                      | 283        |
| D. Avoid Intensifiers                                      | 283        |
| IV. Other Characteristics of Good Style                    | 283        |
| A. Keeping the Subject and Verb Close Together             | 283        |
| B. Avoiding Long Sentences                                 | 284        |
| C. Unnecessary Variations                                  | 285        |
| D. Parallelism   | 285        |
| V. Gender-Neutral Writing                                  | 286        |
| A. Techniques for Nouns: Elimination or Substitution       | 287        |
| B. Techniques for Pronouns                                 | 287        |
| C. Techniques for Proper Names and Titles                  | 288        |

Part Seven: Oral Advocacy 291

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| 22. Oral Argument   | 293 |
| I. The Purpose of Oral Argument  | 293        |
| II. Formalities and Organization of Oral Argument                        | 294        |
| A. Preliminary Formalities   | 294        |
| B. The Appellant’s Argument  | 294        |
| C. Argument of Co-Counsel for the Appellant                              | 295        |
| D. The Appellee’s Argument   | 295        |
| E. Argument of Co-Counsel for the Appellee                               | 296        |
| F. Concluding the Argument   | 296        |
| G. Rebuttal  | 296        |
| III. The Content of Argument   | 297        |
| A. The Standard of Review  | 297        |
| B. The Burden of Proof   | 297        |
| C. The Trial-Level Procedural Posture                                    | 297        |
| D. Themes  | 298        |
| IV. Preparation  | 299        |
| A. The Record  | 299        |
| B. Outline Your Argument   | 299        |
| C. Prepare Your Folder   | 299        |
| D. Script the Entire Opening, the Conclusion, and Your Prepared Rebuttal | 300        |
| E. Practice  | 300        |
| F. Visit the Courtroom   | 300        |
| V. Handling Questions from the Bench                                     | 300        |
| A. Anticipate Questions  | 300        |
| B. Attitude  | 301        |
| C. Recognize Types of Questions  | 301        |
| D. Listen Carefully to the Question                                      | 301        |

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| E. Clarify the Question                                      | 302 |
| F. Begin with a Clear, Direct Answer                         | 302 |
| G. Returning to Your Prepared Presentation                   | 302 |
| H. Handling Questions on Your Co-Counsel's Issue             | 302 |
| I. Handling a Question for Which You Do Not Have an Answer   | 303 |
| J. Agreeing When You Can                                     | 303 |
| K. Referring to Earlier Questions or Comments from the Bench | 303 |
| VI. Presentation   | 303 |
| A. Dress   | 303 |
| B. Body, Hands, and Eyes                                     | 304 |
| C. Voice   | 304 |
| D. References  | 304 |
| E. Nervousness   | 304 |

Appendices 305

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| Appendix A Sample Office Memorandum | 307 |
| Appendix B Sample Trial-Level Brief | 313 |
| Appendix C Sample Appellate Brief   | 319 |
| Appendix D Sample Letters           | 335 |
| Appendix E Cases                    | 343 |

|              |     |
|--------------|-----|
| Index | 353 |
|--------------|-----|